

ROOSEVELT REJECTS GOVERNORS' FARM PROGRAM

FEDERAL FLOUR, PORK EXPECTED IN NEAR FUTURE

Lee County Emergency Relief Committee Receives Promises

Government pork for unemployed Lee county men and their families will be received at the local welfare headquarters within the next few days, according to information received today by J. E. Reagan, secretary of the local relief association. The county's share of the federal pork was expected early last month but word received today indicated that it would arrive within a few days from the packing houses in Chicago.

The pork is to be distributed to families on unemployment relief rolls and will be given in addition to the allotment of other food they receive. The pork will be in three and six pound packages, distributed according to the size of the family receiving it. It was processed from hogs killed by the government in its recently launched program to increase pork prices. The first shipment of the salt cured pork will consist of three tons of the meat which will be distributed throughout the county.

To Get Flour Also
The relief headquarters on Hennepin avenue was notified this morning that Lee county would also receive its first consignment of flour soon. The shipment will consist of 185 barrels, the notice stated.

An important meeting of the Lee County Relief commission was held this morning at the headquarters on Hennepin avenue. O. R. King, district representative of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, and D. L. Bryant, state legislator from the federal commission, met with the members of the county commission. Plans for a county wide census by townships of all who are receiving aid, were outlined and other important subjects were discussed.

A group of unemployed men donated their services this week in removing all of the township canned vegetables from the vault in the basement of the city hall to the relief headquarters on Hennepin avenue where it is now stored.

TO BUY MORE PORK

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Farm Administration said today a program had been worked out for purchasing approximately 300,000,000 pounds of cured hogs products for distribution among needy families.

Plans for the purchases have been arranged with the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, which will have charge of distribution.

The 300,000,000 pounds is in addition to the 100,000,000 already acquired by the relief administration to give the hungry.

The meat is to be bought from packers submitting bids. The products must come from hogs weighing between 100 and 215 pounds.

The purchases, under present plans, will be made at monthly intervals beginning December 1 and ending about next July 1.

Bids on the first purchases, amounting to about 75,000,000 pounds for January delivery, will be opened here on November 17.

Funds will come from the Federal Relief Administration and the Farm Administration.

Stevens Denied New Trial Today

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Ernest J. Stevens, former vice president of the defunct Illinois Life Insurance Company, was refused a new trial today by Judge Michael Feinberg on the charge of embezzling $1,308,000 from the insurance firm his family controlled.

Attorney Franklin J. Stranaky said he would appeal to the Supreme Court to save Stevens from going to prison for a one to ten years term.

Stranaky had advanced 44 reasons, chiefly technical, why his client should be granted a second trial. He contended the evidence failed to show Stevens was guilty.

Formal sentencing was deferred today.

Alleged Shielder Of Kelly Is Free

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Joseph Bergl, Cicero garage operator, today was freed by United States Commissioner Edwin J. Walker on charges of harboring George (Machine Gun) Kelly while the latter was being sought by the government for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil man.

Warren Canady, Assistant U. S. District Attorney, told Commissioner Walker that the government did not have sufficient evidence to hold Bergl.

Charles and Abe Caplan, named with Bergl on the same charge, were indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday. They were released on bond.

Sen. Kendrick, Former Cowboy, Died Late Friday

J. B. KENDRICK

Associated Press (Harris Ewing)

Sheridan, Wyo., Nov. 4.—(AP)—

A flood of messages today brought the nation's condolences as Wyoming mourned the death of its senior United States Senator, John B. Kendrick.

The 76-year-old dean of the Senate, a Democrat, frequently described as "lifting himself by his bootstraps" to a place as one of the leading figures of Wyoming, died late yesterday after an illness of less than two days. Physicians said his death probably was due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Kendrick's political career started in 1910 when he was elected to the state Senate. He educated himself in spare hours while riding the range as a cowboy.

He was born September 6, 1857, in Cherokee county, Texas, where his parents were cattle ranchers. Senator Kendrick's early denial of himself from the pleasures of the cowboy, such as gambling, later brought out his desire to prevent gambling on his ranch. Once he apprehended a group of his cowboys engaged in a poker game. Instead of discharging them, he "sat in" himself and, before it was finished, he had "cleaned" the entire group.

During his service at Washington, the senator directed his ranch from the capital, but he never failed to ride the roundup and eat from the chuck wagon in the summer.

RENUNCIATION OF EXTRADITION TREATY PLANNED

U. S. Expected To Declare Pact With Greece Useless

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The government was understood today to be contemplating instructing its Minister at Athens to renounce the extradition treaty with Greece, as a result of the two failures to extradite Samuel Insull.

It was indicated at the State Department this government feels the extradition treaty is useless to the United States because the Greek authorities have twice denied Insull applications.

Expectations were that a cablegram stating this governments position will go forward immediately to the Minister Lincoln MacVeigh, who will act in accordance with its instructions. There were indications these instructions will be made public tomorrow.

Renunciation of the treaty, if reported as reported, was interpreted in some quarters as meaning the dropping of the Insull case since its definite termination would remove international machinery for returning Insull to this country.

Few works of man would be discernible by the naked eye from the moon; the Great Wall of China is one that would be seen from that point.

Kentucky Will Be Dry For Two Years Regardless Of State Vote On Repeal; But Will Make Liquor

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Kentucky, which votes next Tuesday on repeal, will be legally dry, regardless of the outcome, for at least two years, but if the 18th amendment is wiped out the state will be busily engaged in manufacturing is well known "bottled in bond" product for wet states.

This anomalous situation was brought about by the fact that the states own "bone dry" constitutional amendment can not be voted on until November, 1935, and that the August special session of the General Assembly authorized manufacture of whiskey for medicinal purposes provided the 18th amendment is repealed. It was pointed out that once the whiskey was shipped outside the state Kentucky no longer could control its use and no limit was set upon the amount to be made.

Political observers throughout the state generally agree Kentucky will fall into line with the repeal sentiment shown by 33 states which already have voted, although prohibitionist leaders are claiming it will remain in the dry column. The repeals, who won their fight at the special session for a state-wide vote on the 19 delegates to pass on the matter in state convention, are equally optimistic.

EFFECT OF NEW CURRENCY PLANS YET UNCERTAIN

Few Days May Decide If Deflation War Will Be Outcome

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Whether the new monetary policy of the United States will result in a currency depreciation war with other countries may be determined in the next few days.

With the British pound rising yesterday to $4.95, within a cent of its dollar value when both units were on a gold basis, some economists believe attainment of the old parity would be a logical point for decision on whether to seek approximate stabilization or further dollar depreciation.

Although the administration emphasizes that it has no desire for a depreciation race, some officials concede such competitive depreciation still a possibility.

No Word from Abroad
No clear-cut statement has come from France or England to indicate their acquiescence in the administration's stated belief that the buying of foreign gold could be pushed without detriment to them.

Currency depreciation gives the depreciating country a trade advantage as long as foreign prices rise more rapidly than domestic prices and costs.

It is not expected here that Great Britain would sit by and watch its markets captured by American products, particularly as Britain already has a huge exchange stabilization fund which deals in gold exchange virtually the same as this country does in gold. This fund heretofore, though, has been used primarily for stabilization of the pound.

Must Get Price Rise
The only way the United States could push dollar depreciation much further without encountering resistance by Great Britain, some economists believe, is by achieving a domestic price rise which would preserve the world-trade status quo as far as production costs are concerned.

The administration is attempting to force domestic prices upward by numerous methods unrelated to its gold policies, among them the NRA, the agricultural adjustment plan with its huge benefits to farmers, and the providing of credit for real estate, industry and state and local governments, as well as its own public works program.

World Price Lower
The world price of gold was lower today, but the RFC quotation for newly-minted metal here went on to a new high, while dispatches from abroad indicated the day saw no purchases in bullion markets there for American government.

The London gold figure fell overnight from the equivalent of $32.26 ounce to $32.08, but following the policy of constantly increasing the domestic figure, administration officials raised it from $32.57 yesterday to $32.67 today.

London dispatches said the only transaction recorded there was minor.

Whatever the administration is doing through its agents in foreign markets, it is saying nothing about it here and shielding the operations from speculators who might seek to take advantage of such information.

The dollar being paid for gold in London today on the basis of the dollar closing there at the rate of $4.85 to the pound.

In British currency, the gold price was fixed at 9½ pence lower than yesterday.

Gangsters' Victim Found Dead In Auto

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Angelo Alonzi, 37, was found shot to death today in his own automobile in a lonely section of Stickney, the suburb where the Capone gang once operated its vice resorts.

Police said it apparently was a gangster killing and linked it with the recent slaying of Louis Cowen, publisher of a weekly newspaper at nearby Cicero and former handler of bail bonds for Capone.

Alonzi had been shot twice in the head, his body wrapped in a blanket and thrust into the rumble seat compartment of the automobile. Police said he probably had been killed some distance away, and that the killer drove the car to the place where it was found.

FEDERAL JUDGE DECLINES BID OF COMMITTEE

Refused to Appear to Testify Before Congressional Board

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward declined today to avail himself of an opportunity to appear before a congressional committee and answer charges by witnesses that he has shown favoritism and nepotism in receiverships.

The committee, headed by Rep. Tom D. McKeown of Oklahoma, reassembled this morning to await an answer from Judge Woodward, whom it had invited to testify.

Instead of appearing, the jurist sent this message:

Jurist's Note

"Dear Mr. Chairman: I am in receipt of your invitation to appear before you and your committee, for which I thank you.

"Inasmuch as all the facts pertaining to the subject of your inquiry are a matter of public record in the office of the Clerk of the Court, I am sure that I could not further enlighten your committee by appearing before it.

"Furthermore, some of these matters are undisposed of and still pending before me, and I am sure you will agree with me it would be highly improper for me to discuss them with anyone.

"Thanking you for your invitation, and with my best respects, I remain very truly yours, Charles E. Woodward."

To Meet Again
Congressman McKeown then adjourned the committee, saying that further hearings might be held in January.

He explained that Judge Woodward's appointments as receiver, brought before the public by the Chicago Bar Association, had been the chief concern of the committee here merely because its investigators were ready with evidence concerning them. The investigation of other Chicago Federal Judges will continue, he said.

Witnesses had brought out a number of appointments as receivers counsel had gone to the law firm with which Harold C. Woodward, son of the judge, is affiliated during his term as judge, his son's salary in one year was increased by $15,000.

School Head Gets 10 Years In Prison

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Convicted several weeks ago of a charge of attempted assault on an 11-year-old girl pupil, John L. Harriman, former principal of schools at Ypsilanti, Mich., today was sentenced to 10 years in the Michigan State prison at Jackson.

Only a week ago, the mother related, she received a letter from Miss Godfrey mailed from Cairo, Egypt. She said it was a cheerful account of plans for the trip home.

Records of the New York offices of the Actors' Equity Association showed that a dancer under the name of Joan Winters withdrew from the organization in 1930.

Called Impossible
New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Romance between Joan Winters, American dancer, and an Indian civil servant with whom she was found shot to death in Jerusalem yesterday was described as a "remote and absurd possibility" today by members of the girl's family.

An unmailed letter found in the dead girl's effects indicated, reports from Jerusalem said, that she had formed an attachment for the Indian.

John Taft, Miss Winters' uncle, said the parents had never received any information from their daughter that she had become interested in any man during her travels abroad.

He said the most tenable theory was that his niece met the man on her trip through southern Europe and had hired him to act as her guide in the Holy Land. The two had merely happened to be together, he believed, when they were beset by their assailants.

Taft said the girl's father, Bert Godfrey, Joan Winters was the victim's stage name) was at present on a business trip in the southwest.

Previously, a man at the Godfrey residence had represented himself to telephone callers as Miss Godfrey's father.

Winkler's Widow Collects Jewelry

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Gus Winkler today appeared at the County Coroner's office and claimed the jewelry and money which was her husband's person when he was shot down on the doorstep of a beer distributing plant. She produced a marriage certificate as proof of her right to the property.

She was given the slain gangster's diamond-studded belt buckle, his cigarette lighter, pen knife, diamond-studded watch and chain and $324 in cash.

Romance and Mystery In Death Of American Girl Near Gethsemane Friday

Unmailed Letter Reveals Attachment For A Moslem

Jerusalem, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Romance behind the tragedy of an American girl's death near the Garden of Gethsemane was revealed today in an unmailed letter found in her effects which indicated she had formed an attachment for an Indian with whom she was walking when Arabs fired on and killed them both.

The American Consulate took charge of the case. She was identified as Carol von Niedergaess. Her passport said that in case of need Bert Godfrey or Brooklyn should be notified.

She met the Indian in Athens and arrived in Haifa Sunday. Police found the bodies 48 hours after the tragedy.

Robbery Not Motive
Authorities believed robbery was not the motive for the slayings since money was found on the man's body. He was enroute to Madras to resume his duties.

The couple encountered Arabs outside the walls of the old city during disturbances attending Arab riots in protest against an increasing Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Each body had three bullet wounds inflicted at close range. The woman's body was not molested and was found 20 years from that of her companion.

The woman, who had been described as Joan Winters, a dancer, apparently died from head injuries. The man, identified tentatively as Mohamed Karaman, an Indian civil servant of Madras, had been shot.

At Loss For Details
But further than that, investigators said they were totally at loss to account for the tragedy which they believed took place 48 hours before the bodies were discovered.

Authorities asserted there seemed nothing to account for a motive in the deaths and said there were no clues pointing to an assailant. The olive grove in which the tragedy was revealed is located at the foot of the Mount of Olives.

At Brooklyn, New York, Mrs. Bert Godfrey said she believed the young woman was her daughter, Carol Godfrey, 25, who had appeared in a few stage productions as Joan Winters.

Mrs. Godfrey and John Taft, an uncle of Miss Godfrey, said the girl had planned to return home soon after a year and a half in Palestine, where she had gone to write a book on the land.

Only a week ago, the mother related, she received a letter from Miss Godfrey mailed from Cairo, Egypt. She said it was a cheerful account of plans for the trip home.

Records of the New York offices of the Actors' Equity Association showed that a dancer under the name of Joan Winters withdrew from the organization in 1930.

Famous Reporter Died In Capital

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—William G. Shepherd, staff writer for Collier's magazine and former newspaperman, died today at the George Washington University hospital.

Shepherd, 55 years old, died of bronchial pneumonia. He became ill here last Monday and was transferred to the hospital from his hotel on Thursday.

During his long writing career, he was present at the principal historical developments of the past decade.

Solution Of Lindbergh Baby's Kidnaping And Murder Pledged By Officials Of Justice Dept.

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Officials of the Department of Justice, whose field office heads are here for a two-day course on latest technique in the government's anti-crime drive, are confident the Lindbergh kidnaping eventually will be solved.

Admitting there are no new "hot tips," one official supposed to know about progress in the case said to newspapermen today:

"There are plenty of angles in old leads that can be explored further."

Just what these angles are he would not say, but he stated with assurance:

"We'll solve that case."

Heads of the department's 25 investigating field offices now meeting here may have been given some fresh instructions in the Lindbergh case. But trying to find out what J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the investigation division, told that group behind tightly closed doors is difficult.

Hoover, who will close the conference today, described it as more or less routine, but older heads around the Justice Department could not recall the last time all supervisors of field offices were here at once.

TRUCE IN FARM STRIKE ENDS AS RESULT OF WORD

Governor Of North Dakota Is "Disgusted" With President

BULLETIN
Madison, Wis., Nov. 4.—(AP)—

The farm strike truce declared by the Wisconsin Holiday Association several days ago was officially ended today by Arnold Gilberts, state president of the Association. Gilberts urged holiday members throughout the state to resume withholding of all farm products from market 17, asked that their actions be peaceful and that law and order be maintained.

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today assured the Governors and the farmers of the middle west of "every possible effort to bring about an increase in prices without exerting the compulsion of the individual farmers."

The President and Secretary Wallace were disclosed to have turned down the proposal of the Governors to license all handlers and processors of agricultural products.

A lengthy statement explaining the views of the Governors and the administration was given out at the conclusion of today's meeting between the President and the Governors.

Langer "Disgusted"
Governor Langer of North Dakota said he was "disappointed and disgusted" with the President's decision. He contended it represented "a 100 per cent rejection of our plan."

Langer declared that the decision "means that the farmer is the forgotten man," adding "everybody else has been before him including the railroads and the insurance companies and there is nothing left for him."

Governor Olson of Minnesota, who acted as spokesman for the state executives, said that the administration rejected the plan for the same reasons which the Department of Agriculture gave yesterday—principally because he believes a large sum of money would be required, which is not available for buying products at fixed prices to support the market."

Objection "Invalid"
Olson said he believed this objection was invalid, that no government purchases would be necessary and that surpluses instead could be "backed up on the farms."

In his opinion, Olson said, the rejection of the plan will mean that "there will be a great deal of disturbance in the mid-west farming sections unless prices for this year's crop are substantially raised soon."

The Governor's new program included modifications aimed to meet objections by farm officials. As re-drafted it provided:

Modifies Program
Fixing prices of beef cattle, hogs, corn, wheat, milk and butterfat at parity.

Regimenting farm production by giving each farmer a quota to produce of the quantities of these six commodities required by consumers. Quotas would be based on the past volume of each farmer's production.

Licensing of processors and handlers of these products to force them to pay fixed prices.

The Governors—Olson of Minnesota, Herring of Iowa, Berry of South Dakota, Langer of North Dakota and Schmedeman of Wisconsin—said they were unanimous in favoring the program.

Settle Unable To Take Off Last Eve

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Instead of soaring toward the stratosphere today, Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle and Major Chester L. Fordney were safe on the ground in Chicago today a menacing wind having led to another postponement of the balloon ascension a few hours before the scheduled takeoff.

Commander Settle announced the decision late last night after conferring with government weather forecasters on probable conditions over all parts of the continent.

"The wind velocity at the field (Worlds Fair) is now between 15 and 20 miles an hour," he said. "There is no possibility it will get less, rather that it will increase. We should like to have winds of less than six miles on hour for perfect safety."

He said another attempt to take off may be made soon, probably tomorrow night.

THE REAL FOUNDATION OF AMERICAN LIFE.

A way back in the days of the Roman empire, when the Caesars were worried by a steadily rising tax rate and a slow stagnation of business, the populace was kept quiet by a judicious mixture of bread and games.

The government undertook to feed the hungry, bringing in great shiploads of wheat from Alexandria. And since Rome was full of unemployed, great gladiatorial shows were staged frequently in the coliseum, to keep the proletariat's mind off its troubles.

The upshot, as everybody knows, was that nobody worried about anything and the empire finally collapsed of its own weight.

All this ancient history is mentioned here because there are people who think something similar is happening in America today.

President A. H. Upham of Miami University told an Ohio teachers' convention the other day that right now we are in a fair way to slide down to the old Roman level. On one hand we have vast masses of people whose first interest is in getting enough to eat, and who are looking to the federal government to meet that need.

On the other, we have developed a craving for a circus type of entertainment—world series games, great football contests, aberrations such as marathon dance contests, crooners, fan dancers and the grotesqueries of professional boxing and wrestling matches.

The result, says President Upham, is that we are apt to forget the values that really matters—self-denial, service, idealism, a taste for literature and art, and so on.

There is no question that you could make out a good case for pessimism, if you chose. We do support a lot of "entertainment" that seem to have been drawn up by and for morons.

And yet it is very easy to assume that these things matter more than really is the case.

There is plenty of froth on the surface of American life, heaven knows. But beneath it all there flows a swift, deep, and powerful current—an awareness of life's real problems, a determination to do something effective about them, an idealism that will respond whenever anyone makes a proper appeal to it.

The biggest mistake anyone could make today would be to assume that the great mass of the populace is heedless and flippant. Underneath, there is a driving force and a seriousness of purpose that never should be forgotten.

THE FINAL RITES

The American Federation of Labor is beginning to collect "museum exhibits" on child labor. Shop bulletin board notices, pay envelopes, newspaper clippings, photographs, letters—all sorts of things that show what child labor was and how it operated are being assembled under direction of President William Green, so that future generations can know just how the childhood of this nation was exploited.

Now the interesting thing about this move is the implication that goes with it. The federation is making this collection for the simple reason that it believes child labor to be definitely a thing of the past.

It believes that within a very few years child labor will be unknown in America, so it laying away its exhibits while there still is time.

Few things that have happened this year have been of much more importance than this victory over an ancient menace to national well-being.

A BOOMERANG.

A story from Chicago says that authorities in the ten Western Conference universities are growing disgusted over the way in which alumni are yelling for the scalps of football coaches whose teams are not doing as well as was expected this fall.

It is implied that these universities will take drastic steps to "de-emphasize" football unless this clamor lets up.

"It's all right to have enthusiasm for football," one faculty representative is quoted as saying, "but to let it run away with you is something else again. . . . After all, you know, football is just a sport, not a college education."

Right here the dilemma of the big university in connection with football is apparent. That football enthusiasm does run away with alumni each year is obvious; so, too, is the fact that many alumni make spectacles of themselves in their demands for an unbroken string of victories.

But when you build an enormous stadium, hire a big coaching staff, and conduct your football program in major league style, you are asking for that kind of enthusiasm. You can't make your investment pay if you don't get it.

We should teach the art of life. If we can't teach that we should keep still and stop chattering about other matters.—John Erskine, author.

Of course poor Duncy got a big scare when he was turned into a hare. He ran around in circles until he could hardly see.

And then he said, "This may look slick, but I think it's a real mean trick. However I am glad my head's just as it ought to be."

The Mystic Man replied, "Well, son, I thought it would be lots more fun to let you keep your own head, so that you could talk to us."

"I'll let you run a while and then make you a little boy again. Please show us how high you can jump. Don't try to start a fuss."

"All right. I will do my very best," said brave Duncy, "to amuse the rest. Then, in return, I am sure that you will pull me out of this."

"Of course he will," cried wee Dotty. "Gee you are a funny sight to see. The way you ran was something that I'm glad I didn't miss."

"Let's see you hop like real hares do, so all of us can laugh at you." Then little Duncy took one leap and disappeared from sight.

Wee Duncy cried out, "Tell us, please, where he has gone." "Back in the trees," replied the kindly Mystic Man. "Don't fret. He will be all right."

Soon Scoutly loudly shouted, "All hark! I am positive I heard a bark. Hey, look! A dog is chasing Duncy. Now he's picked him up!"

The Mystic Man laughed right out loud, and then he said to all the crowd, "Just keep your eyes on me. I am going to fool that little pup."

Once more he shouted, "Ziczy Zoo!" The next thing that the Times knew, wee Duncy was himself again. He still hung in the air.

What happened, then, was lots of fun. The little pup began to run, and then he dropped wee Duncy because the change gave him a scare.

NATURAL AND UNNATURAL

There are some who argue that all forms of vaccination and immunization are unnatural. They claim that the immunizing substances are poisons which when injected into the body, injure it.

Some even suggest that cancer and other dire diseases result from vaccination.

Proponents of vaccination dismiss these alarming suggestions as being entirely contrary to evidence.

Why is it natural to be bitten by a mosquito, they ask, but unnatural to be punctured by a hypodermic needle? Why is it natural to get malaria from one, but unnatural to prevent, say, typhoid by the other?

The truth of the matter, argue the vaccinationists, is that this business of natural and unnatural is rather vague and far-fetched.

For nature is too large, too involved and too intricate to conform to any narrow system of logic. Nature has a logic all her own. The best we can do is to learn nature's ways and to conform to them.

Many people must have noticed many, many centuries ago, that certain diseases are developed once and once only, and that, having survived, the individual does not contract any of these diseases a second time, no matter how often he is exposed.

Smallpox is the classical example of this type of disease. Man naturally argued that could be but imitate nature and produce, in a controlled form, the disease smallpox, he should then win lasting resistance against it. And this, as a matter of fact, he tried to do.

Before the days of Jenner, mothers deliberately inoculated their children with the pus taken from the smallpox victim, thus giving their children artificially contracted smallpox.

Jenner carried this process further by giving us a mild smallpox virus, that is, cowpox, with which resistance against smallpox could be developed.

The conquest of smallpox is one of the great achievements of medicine.

The fact of the matter is, however, that banking like any other business, is dependent upon the cooperation it receives from the community it serves.

Nature's Cataclysms Claim Unusual *Toll in 1933

Red Cross Relief Forces Ever on Alert to Assuage Misery of Victims of Earthquake, Hurricanes, Floods, Fires and Tornadoes—120 Disasters in Year.

IN A YEAR of economic stress when great effort has been made to mobilize all of the volunteer resources of the nation to meet the day-to-day needs of millions of people for bread and a roof, old Mother Nature chose to cut loose with an unusual number of disasters to add to the general misery.

The annals of the American Red Cross list all of the rampages of flood, fire, tornado, earthquake and other swift-striking catastrophes for the past fifty-two years. In years other than 1933, a greater number of persons have looked to the organization for quick relief in perhaps a single disaster of vast magnitude—such as the Mississippi floods of 1927 or the drought of 1930-31.

But in 1933 such a wide variety of unusual cataclysms were visited upon people that the record reached 120 for the year ending June 30—or an average of a serious catastrophe every three days. And following on the wings of these devastating forces, came a series of hurricanes in August and September, laying waste vast fields of crops, acres of fruit, in Florida and the Rio Grande Valley in Texas, and destroying the resources of fishermen and tillers of the soil along the Atlantic seaboard from Delaware to North Carolina.

Forty-four Tornadoes

In about twelve weeks—from March 14 to June 30—tornadoes struck in sixteen states. Had this been one great storm it would have been appalling in its intensity and destruction. Red Cross records show that during the year 44 of these fierce wind storms, swooping within narrow confines to hit in towns and fields, claimed 326 lives; injured 2,755 persons and caused Red Cross relief to be given to 21,738.

Aside from tornadoes, the Red Cross carried relief to the victims of the earthquake in southern California; two fires in Maine; floods in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys which recurred several times; floods and dam breaks in the northwest; a typhoid epidemic where 250 persons were stricken in one county; and in carrying relief to a snowbound camp of gold prospectors.

In number of lives lost and property damage the earthquake of March 10 in southern California was the most disastrous earthquake that had occurred in the United States in twenty-five years. Deaths numbered 95 and thirty-one thousand homes, two thousand apartment houses, stores, office buildings, factories, warehouses, theaters and churches were damaged. Fortunately the shocks occurred late in the afternoon, when public buildings, including schools were not occupied. The majority of the deaths occurred outside of the buildings, from falling walls or cornices.

The Red Cross was immediately upon the scene, and aided by the army, navy and civilian organizations soon had temporary tent colonies erected in the parks, where several thousand persons were fed and housed for weeks. Four months later, in July, the Red Cross brought to a close its relief work for the stricken people. A relief fund of $411,000 was expended by the Red Cross. Emergency aid was given to ten thousand persons and 1,773 families were rehabilitated in their homes and occupations. The largest expenditure was for building and repairs, and the second largest for medical aid.

Security for Life

Rehabilitation is a term not always clear to the lay mind. An example of what it means may be given: A skilled craftsman, 40 years of age, whose wife was killed in the quake, himself suffered a broken back and fractures of both limbs. Paralysis resulted with the medical opinion that he will be crippled for life. He had no resources with which to meet this situation. The Red Cross paid funeral expenses for burial of his wife; paid for his hospital and medical care; purchased a wheel chair and appliances for his comfort. The Red Cross will continue to maintain him until March, 1934, preparing him through supplying equipment for a science and art, insight. It is the most precious thing on earth, without which man would lose his way and stumble in the night. Poets, seers, saints have eyes to see where there is only blank blackness to the rest of us. With their keener, clearer vision they show us the way out of shadows.

The mother is to remain in her home and care for her children for six years, during which time she may prepare herself to earn a livelihood, for which training the Red Cross will pay.

Afraid, all, maybe religion, wisdom, happiness, is just the gift of seeing the truth of life in such high relief that the rest of dark days we discover a new ray of faith, the way will be plain where now we grope and wander.

PILLAR OF SALT

By L. L. R.

It is now too late to longer ignore that the machine age is a fast-moving destroyer of tradition. To throw out the machine at this stage to satisfy the old beliefs, however, would be to return to a point below our present progressive attainment.

And so it seems that in solving the present industrial and economic problems, to make room for progress, the first things to be cleared up are outworn traditions. Not the least of these, it appears, is the idea of the holiness of labor.

If we are to keep the machine, there is much manual labor rendered useless. In this article, we will not be concerned with the immediate uses of the enforced reduction of labor hours, strictly speaking, but more particularly in its justification from the standpoint of progressive human development.

The time-worn and deep-seated theory that things are as they should be only when man earns his daily bread by the sweat of his brow is one of the first traditional beliefs which is now an obstacle. Work ceases to be honorable when its practice stands as an impediment in the path of progress.

The plea is that man, thus relieved of much labor, cannot profitably utilize the leisure he will gain thereby. Until the present readjustment is complete, the uncertainty makes this assertion a truth but let us consider it in the light of the obvious future.

The new leisure will produce greater engineers and doctors to serve humanity better. It will bring forth more skillful craftsmen. It will make for a happier people with a far broader vision, gained through travel and conversation.

All men have ambitions which the old order of things prevented them from realizing. Whether it be used for study or for the pursuit of the new leisure will bring with it a stronger and more contented people. For centuries, those who labor have assured themselves that manual labor is one of the most honorable things in life. This was due, quite naturally, to a desire to content themselves with their lot. Much of the labor is now unnecessary, but the old belief still lives.

I do not contend that labor is wrong. In it man creates; it is right. But affairs of government, the journey toward social harmony the stamping out of disease—to all these, and more, man can now apply himself more diligently.

small shop to become self-supporting after that date. Other striking cases of Red Cross thought for the future of the victims of the quake were evident in the relief work. Another case of a young wife, with two small children and a third unborn, whose husband was killed in the earthquake and who was without resources, may be given as an example. A mod-

Epidemics follow floods. Immunization by Red Cross at Kelso, Washington.

Dramatic incidents of relief during the year were such varied types as rushing food by horse and wagon over mountain trails to 33 placer gold miners and their families in Steep Hollow flat in California; in mobilizing eighteen Red Cross nurses to fight a typhoid epidemic in South Dakota where 250 were stricken and 39 died before the plague was brought under control; and in the vigil of a lone Red Cross nurse on a mountaintop, which she had reached through ploughing hours in a blizzard, to care for twelve men frightfully injured in the explosion of a grist mill. She fabricated medical aids from the meager furnishings of the log homes about her, and succeeded in getting all men to the hospital the next day where all recovered.

Equally helpful but not so dramatic, were the Red Cross relief operations in the cities of Auburn and Ellsworth, Maine, following two great fires early in May. Both fires were fanned by high winds, destroyed hundreds of homes and buildings. Aid in rebuilding homes and furnishing them was given by the Red Cross to 163 families in Ellsworth and 266 in Auburn.

In order to be able always thus to rush relief workers, medical aid and supplies, food, clothing and give shelter when these cataclysms strike, the Red Cross once each year seeks the support of all citizens, asking them to join as members during the annual appeal or roll call. By joining their local chapters, citizens support also the work of the national organization.

While disaster relief draws heavily upon the treasury of the organization, many other vital and varied tasks are carried on. During the past 18 months, the Red Cross distributed government wheat and cotton in the form of bread and clothing to five and a half million families, in all counties in the nation, excepting six. This was the greatest single relief work ever attempted in history. The Red Cross financed the administrative costs which are estimated to amount to $735,000.

FUSION BATTLE IN NEW YORK IS AT WHITE HEAT

50,000 Attended Rally and Cheer Battle On Tammany

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The fusion drive to wrest control of New York City from Tammany Hall flared to a white heat today on the heels of a spirited mass meeting in Madison Square Garden which attracted a throng estimated at 50,000 persons Thursday.

At the same time, Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany's entrant in the race, and Joseph V. McKee, independent, marshalled their forces for a final thrust, ending with mass meetings in Manhattan tonight.

McKee adherents hailed an announcement by Postmaster General James A. Farley that he would vote for McKee next Tuesday. Farley's statement, issued in Washington, made it clear that he was speaking as an individual voter and not as Democratic National Chairman, but McKee supporters considered it the nearest thing possible to administration approval.

President Roosevelt previously had declined to take any part in the campaign. The fusion rally Thursday found Madison Square Garden jammed with a huge, shouting throng that cheered repeatedly as Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Samuel Seabury and other fusionists demanded the permanent destruction of Tammany Hall. An even larger crowd gathered outside the Garden and at the end of the rally, police had a big job on their hands breaking up the jam that resulted.

Everyday Religion

SEEING IN THE DARK By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton The miracles of science never end.

An English paper tells of the discovery of a new ray which turns the "dark room" of a photographer into a light room. At first the room is pitch dark, then in a little while, gradually, a glimmer of green-blue light is seen. The light grows until objects in the room are clearly discerned.

"But," says the writer, "the odd part of it is that it is not the lamps being slowly turned on, but the eyes of the spectators which are being enabled, by means of the new ray, to see in the dark just as a cat sees. The wonder of the new ray is that it makes the human eye keener; it can see what before was hidden."

Some people seem to have an inward eye which enables them to see in the dark. Else why is it that the world is a "dark room" to one man and a "light room" to another—though the outward facts are the same to both? It is because one man has learned what the other has not discovered—to see in the dark as a cat sees.

One man sees a world of sorrow and pain; the other a world full of courage and hope. One sees a hundred social confusions; the other new crusades conquering evil. At the end of life one sees the frail flesh turning to dust; the other sees the victorious spirit rising in triumph. To the outward eye the objects are the same, but one has found a new ray which turns the darkness into day. In religion, we call it faith; in
